Overview of Ecosperity

- 40th anniversary and in partnership with Goldman Sachs, will bring together global CEOs, top public officials and thought leaders to explore cutting edge issues on sustainable growth
- As world economies develop and a significant portion of the global population transitions into the middle class, global prosperity needs to be achieved in an environmentally sustainable way. This exclusive event will enable an intimate and robust exchange of information, best practices and ideas on how we can achieve this goal

- industries which are at the forefront of economic development. Ecosperity will foster the exchange of ideas and best practices on balancing environmental sustainability with economic development objectives across these industries in both established and frontier regions.
